MARRIAGE NOTICES, FOR THE WHOLE UNITED STATES 1785-1794.

COPIED FROM COMPLETE FILES OF THE MASSACHUSETTS CENTINEL AND THE COLUMBIAN CENTINEL, WITH A PREFACE AND OCCASIONAL NOTES.

BY CHARLES KNOWLES BOLTON.

THE marriages recorded in the Centinel were of three kinds: those of well-to-do persons, useful to the genealogist because they give in many cases the actual day of the marriage as well as the name of the bride's father and his residence; those of celebrities, like General Gates, and members of the Washington family, sometimes communicated by travellers, and often inaccurate; those of eccentric people, usually amusing.

The date given here is always that of the paper. The marriage may have taken place a day or a month previous to the insertion of the notice. Sometimes the date may be found by reckoning back from the day on which the paper was issued to the day of the week on which the marriage took place, if the day is given. W. in the following records stands for Wednesday and S. for Saturday. "In this town" refers to Boston, Mass.

The third class of notices illustrates one side of the old time New England life, a love of the grotesque and the unusual. The space now devoted to sensational trials was filled one hundred years ago, with accounts of people of great age and the number of their living descendants, of marriages of curious characters, of deaths by loathsome diseases, and of the ingenious punishments inflicted on unlucky criminals.

The unusual number of printers noticed shows the fraternal feeling which has always characterized the press.

I have taken no liberties with proper names, except misprints of the most familiar given names. It should be borne in mind that names were as a rule printed in small caps, and the confusion of letters like E and N and L is common.

Without the kindly assistance of those connected with Bates Hall, in the Boston Public Library, I could not, with my slight leisure, have found time for the undertaking.

'Tis easy to admire the flower
With which the gard'ner deck'd his bow'r;
Because it must be excellent or rare,
Before his judgment could have plac'd it there
But not so easy, in a wood or vale,
The virtues of a plant or flower to tell—
Discern its proper class—pronounce its name,
Select it thence, without least fear or blame,
And say it has a right better place and fame.

ENGLISHED.

As hand with hand, as dove unites with dove,
Those link'd in wedlock, should be link'd in love,
Love join'd with labour should compleat the state,
And make that lasting which before was great,
When such fruition to terrestriars given,
Who would not wish for marriage in Heaven?
Or who thus blest, would wish to enter there?
Wedlock's a Heav'n beyond what angels share.
